Art Unit: 1761

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

Applicant does not teach, "consisting essentially of" as it relates to the starch. The specification as originally filed does not show recognition to exclude.

Applicant argues that the specification supports exclusion. The use of "consisting essentially of" limits the scope of a claim to the specified material or steps and those that do not materially affect the basic and novel characteristics(s) of the claimed invention. The specification (page 9) states, "(i)n particular, non-pregelatinized, modified starch can be used in the present invention."

It is not seen where in the specification applicant excludes additional starches. Applicant lists preferred starches but does not exclude.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Zallie et al (US 4937091) in view of Magnuson (Cereal Foods World) for the reasons set forth in rejecting the claims in the last Office action.

Zallie et al disclose a cheese composition comprising modified starch as a casein replacement and the use of emulsifying salts (see entire document, especially column 9, lines 27-42 and column 3, lines 57-63). Zallie et al also disclose substitutes for caseinates include starches, wheat gluten, and mixtures thereof (see column 2, lines 1-9).

The claims differ as to the specific use of wheat gluten and the amounts employed.

Magnuson discloses the use of wheat gluten in the preparation of cheese (see page 180).

In the absence of a showing to the contrary, the amounts employed and the specific type of starch and protein are seen to be no more than a matter of choice and well-within the skill of the art. Applicant is using known components to obtain expected results.

It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to use the claimed amounts in that of Zallie et al because the use and manipulation of starches and gluten as caseinate replacements is conventional in the art.

The additional starches of the prior art do not materially affect the basic and novel characteristics of the claimed invention.

Applicant's arguments filed May 30, 2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues that Zallie et al teach additional starches

Zallie et al teach the use of starch as a casein replacement (see entire document). Zallie et al teach the blending of starches including "unmodified, or debranched, or derivatized, or precooked and spray-dried, or acid-converted, or crosslinked, or any combination thereof" (column 3, lines 57-63). It is not seen how this differs from that of the claimed invention. The additional starches of the prior art do not materially affect the basic and novel characteristics of the claimed invention.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
